GEN. BANKS'S PLAN.—Early in May last, the Hon. N. P. Banks, then residing in this city, came into the Tribune sanctum to see our night despatches. In the course of conversation, which turned on the rebellion, Mr. Banks expressed himself substantially as follows: This rebellion cannot be put down by the force which the Government has now called out. Seventy five thousand militia will prove wholly inadequate to restore peace to the country.

The Government and, he feared, the people of the loyal States immensely underrated the strength and means which the rebel chiefs can command. This is a rebellion of the slave power against a republican form of government. That political element which has been strong enough to rule this nation for fifty years cannot be reduced to subjection to the Constitution by a few regiments of militia. Before this giganic slave-holders' conspiracy can be crushed, it will tax to the utmost the power and endurance of the mation.

The people will have to put forth an effort the utmost the power and endurance of the nation.

The people will have to put forth an effort which has no parallel in modern times. He regarded this as the most formidable as well as atrocious rebellion which had occurred since the Middle Ages. The Sepoy insurrection was no circumstance to it, either in strength or wickedness. The Sepoys did not revolt for the purpose strangling free governments and setting up a lave despotism, as the authors of the secession rebellion have done. The Sepoys were reduced to obedience in a few months by less than 80,000 British troops. Four times that many will not suffice to crush out the slaveholders' revolt against the Union. If he was at the head of public affairs, he would call out fice hundred thousand men for the war. He would charter every merchant steamer and ship fit for naval service. As soon as the army was equipped and prepared to march, he would start one column of 150,000 men from Washington to Richmond. Simultaneously he would move another column of 100,000 western men down the Missispipi to reach Memphis by the time the Eastern army got to Richmond. He would send a division of 50,000 emphis by the time the Eastern army got to ichmond. He would send a division of 50,000 en from Louisville to Nashville, to support and otect the Union men of Central and Eastern mns moved, he would fit out an expedition by yea, and place 50,900 soldiers aboard the fleet hover along the Southern coast from Charleson to Galreston. This would keep the rebels at ome in the coast States, as they would be in consult dead of a visit to see the second nome in the coast States, as they would be in contant dread of a visit at every port, not knowing where the fleet might land the army. This force in shipboard, Mr. Banks thought, would compel o remain in their own States, four times the men in the expedition. It would be a movable column which, by the aid of wind and steam, might be iff Charleston to-day, and land at Savannah tonorrow. Hence it's power and efficiency.
The remaining 150,000 he would distribute in ityisions at Washington, New York, St. Luis, saltimore, and other points, to act as reserves.

When asked how he would procure the money necessary to equip and support so vast an army, he promptly replied: Open a national loan as the Emperor Napoleon did, and appeal to the patriotsm of the whole people; take all sums offered from the widow's mite up to Astor's millions. The Treasury would be abundantly supplied by the subscriptions of the masses. Only let the people see that the Government is in real earnest in its purpose to put down the rebellion, and it will not call on Hercules for help in vain.

Unfortunate Casualty.—The only untoward went which interfered with the general pleasure incident to the barbecue of last Thureday, happened just as the cars were about to start back to Lexington late in the evening. A gain in the bands of some unknown person accidentally went off, wounding three men, one in the heal, another in the wrist, and a third in the leg. All the wounds were slight, and after they were bastily freesed the parties left on the train for their repetitive homes in Lexington and Paris. THE LONG MISSING STEAMPSHIP PACIFIC—1.1

Message from the Sea.—Our readers may have observed recently, among our maritime extracts, the copy of the contents of a sip of paper found in a bottle some weeks ago on the western coast of Uist, in the Hebrides, and firwarded to us by our agent at Stornoway. The piper in question, eposternly the leaf of a pocket book, used in the hurry of the nument, was covered on both sides with pencil mirks, from which the following was with difficulty deciphered: On board the Pacific, from Liverpool to New York. Great confusion on board. Icebergs arou-du so nevery side. Ik now I cannot escape. I write the cause of our loss that friends may not live in suspense. The finder of this will please get it published. Wm. Graham. If we are right in our conjecture, the ship here named is the Pacific, one of the Collins line of steamers, which vessel l-ft Liverpool on January 23, 1856, three days before the Parsia, and has not since been heard of; and this slip of paper, three inches by two, is probably the only record of the fate of that missing ship. CAPILLARY ATTRACTION OF THE SOIL -Many a farmer has puzzled himself over cer-Many a farmer has puzzled himself over cer-tain phenomena that were constantly coming within the range of his experience, but for which he has found it difficult to account For instance, he knows that wherever a pile of brush has been left carelessly in the field during the summer, the grass that springs be-neath it and makes its way through the tangle will show a far greater luxuriance of growth than the grass in the open field alongside. Again: If the surface of a poor piece of land be kept covered for a season or two with boards or litter, or is occupied by a heap of stones, or any refuse material that prevents vegetation, the ground so occupied will be found on breaking it up much more fertile than the ground. ing it up much more fertile than the ground divisions at Washington, New York, St. Louis, Baltimore, and other points, to act as reserves and supports wherever the exigencies of the campaign might most need them. He would keep recruiting offices open wherever a regiment had been raised, to fill the vacancies in the ranks caused by battle or sickness. He would call on the people to organize a National Home Guard that million men, take care of traitors in their midst, and to put their shoulders to the wheel for a final effort, if it were found that the first half million were not able to crush out the foul rebellion. crease the fertility, notwithstanding the fact that it is eliminating at the same time all the elements that are necessary to sustain the new growth of brushwood and timber, and which Me calculated that Richmond, Nashville, and Memphis could be occupied before the frosts of autumn, and that during the winter campaign the two main armies would move southward, one along the Atlantic slope and the other down the Mississippi. By next spring, he thought, the Stars and Stripes might be waving over the Crescent City, and even Montgomery—the then capital of the rebels.

All the calculated that Richmond, Nashville, and growth of brushwood and timeer, and where the constituents that it was possible for such a worn-out soil to have obtained. Moreover, it is a c-stom among the English landlords to stipping twith the farmers to whom they lease lands for cultivation, that not more than two thirds of the farm shall be kept constantly under the plow, and that the kept constantly under the plow, and that the remaining one third shall be always retained as grass land or permanent pasture. These as graes iand or permanent pastures. These permanent pastures, when properly set in the first instance, are found to improve in point of fertility year efter year, so that when they are finally broken up for reseeding they are found in much better condition than they were when previously put down to grass. We might cite a multitude of examples to the same effect, but it would be scarcely necessary to do so, for every man of any experience in cultivaring the case. every man of any experience in cultivating the soil is constantly brought to notice similar re-sults. The philosophy of thi-f-rtilizing process which has thus been going on silently is perhaps sun upon the soil, and the cons called permanent pastures are benefitted in precisely the same way. The soil is protected by the growing grasses from the exhaustion of its gases by the sun's rays, and at the manner time the under leaves are gradually forming a mass of vegetable matter, or humus, on the surface, which retains the moisture which would otherwise escape into the atmosphere, and absorbs the gases as they rise from below by sorbs the gases as they rise from below by the surface.

What is meant by capil. its gases by the sun's rays, and at the same sorbs the gases as they rise from below by capillary attraction. What is meant by capil-lary attraction in its connection with agriculture, is thus lucidly explained by an intelligent ration of the water to distribute throughout the surface soil. This explains the reason why manures when applied for a shorter or IS THE

At this first corner the father halted as the son rode on. The father called to his son Alfred that they were all wrong and must turn back. The youth turned back, and had returned only a few paces when he received a violent blow, and looked up to see his father advancing on him with something uplifted in his hand to strike again. The second blow fell, the youth's hat was off, and his forehead streaming with blood, but his spurred horse rose to intercept on its own head the third blow, and at that moment a laboring man and woman came round the opposite corner.

The man, John Rivers, saw the elder strike the younger on the forehead with something which he took to be a whip handle that glittered at the end. The youth slipping off his horse, rushed to the feet of the woman for protection. Close by was John Evans, a bargeman, to whom the son next clung, crying, "Help me! Protect me! Save me!" When the youth was questioned, he saw his father looking intently at him, saying some thing about a wall and a fall. John Everett, an a other laborer, came up, and, seeing the wounded youth, of course asked, "How did it happen?" The father replied that the young gentleman had stood up in his saddled to look over a wall, that the horse reared, and so he fell. To Evans he said that the horse shied and threw the boy against the wall.

STORY OF A NORTHERN MECHANIC—How HE ESCAPED FROM THE SOUTH.—An intelligent mechanic called on us this morning and gave a statement of his escape from North Carolina, and of his observations on the route. He had been employed in the shops of the North Carolina Railroad, between Weldon and Charlotte, for some time, but grew uneasy in consequence of having been hauled up before the Vigilance Committees three times on suspicion of being a Union man. He states that there are but a few Union men in North Carolina, and they live with a halter round their necks. The Southerners where he resided knew all about how the Manassas battle would come off five days before it really took place, and the North Carolina Central Railroad passed 8,000 Georgia, Alabama, and South Carolina troops North just before it took place. Out informant escaped just while they were rejoicing most loudly over the result of the Manassas as fair, and when they thought themselves invincible.

Our informant states that were it not for the Yankees, who are working at the South, the tebels would never get along at all. Out of 40 engineers on the N. C. C. railroad, nearly every man was a Yankee. Then, too, the Yankees make all their ammunition and do everything requiring inschanical skill. Our informant escaped your considerable will be supposed by going South from North Carolina to Stephenson, Alabama, and from thence to Nashville. He then crossed over to Kentucky and reached Louismon, and they free is an encampment, mainly of artillery forces, at a place called Big Shanty, shout twenty miles from Allanta, Ga. There is also another rebal encampment of several thousand troops at Murfree-boro, Tenn. Secsion diags were flying along his entire route, until he rached Bowling Green, Ky., where the stars and stripes first met his gaze. He was informed that millions of dollars would be spent to induce Kentucky to go out of the Union, but from all the could learn Kentucky would remain under the Southernized Yankees, and he reitersted that if render a sandy soil more firm would scarcely select, as the agent, fresh, strawy manure, for the simple reason that the rigidity of the straw would produce results the very opposite of those he sought. Well rotted manure should be spepiled to sandy soils for this purpose. The soil needs compressing, and well rotted manure is a very efficient agent for this purpose. On stiff, tenacious soils, the strawy manure is what is wanted. It renders them more open and friable, admits the free passage of rain and atmosphere, and in a variety of ways promotes fertility and easier management. These thoughts are not new, though they possess a thoughts are not new, though they possess a could learn Kentucky would remain under the stars and stripes.

Our informant was especially bitter on the Southernized Yankees, and he reiterated that if you could drive the Yankees out of rebaldom, you would have the South helpless and at your mercy.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Napoleon on Trained Soldiers -- The ad vocates of the "Forward to Richmond" policy have been in the habit of quoting Napoleon the First as saying that three months training for soldiers was as good as three years. Such nonsense put in the mouth of the great conqueres might well make him "turn in his coffin." Allison, in his History of Napoleon, cites his language in discussing the question of how much time is required to make a reliable soldier. In a Two Men Killed by Lightning -During conversation respecting the naval conscription

Truget observed:

Much longer time is required to form a sailor than a soldier. The latter may be trained in all his duties in six months. Napoleon replied:

Napoleon replied:

There never was so great a mistake. Nothing can be more dangerous than to propagate such opinions. If acted upon, they would speedily lead to the dissolution of the army. At Jemappe, there were 50,000 Fernch against 9,000 Austrians. During the first four years of the war, all the hostile operations were conducted in the most ridiculous manner. It was neither the volunteers nor the recruits who saved the republic; it was the 180,000 old trop so for the monarchy, and the discharged veterans whom the revolution impelled to the frontier. Part of the recruits deserted, part died; a small portion only remained, who, in the process of time, formed good soldiers. Why have the Romans done such great things? Because six years' instruction were, with them, required to make a soldier. A legion composed of three thousand such men was worth thirty thousand ordinary troops. With fifteen thousand such men as the Guards, I would everywhere beat forty thousand. You will not find me engaged soon in war with an army of recruits.

tract is from the Charleston Mercury's army correspondent now in Virginia:

The militia are being mustered in to day, and many of them came into it with considerable reluctance. There are some who have no ardent sympathy for the cause. They will fight for the South, of course, if obliged to tight, but they have the feeling that if it had not been for South Carolina there would have been no necessary for fighting. Many others can badly spare the time. Their oats is unharvested; their other crops are still immature; they have no hands to work them but their own; and it is truly a matter of serious inconvenience and injury to be obliged to turn cut. Yet in this section there are many who can fight, and who can be spared to fight, but who will not unless they are compolled to do it. Besides this, with the militia will come out the ordinary fire-arms of the country, which will not

It has too near an approach to barbarism.

It is gratifying to record, however, that even in the prosecution of this style of warfare the rebels are by no means successful. An attempt of such a nature was made on a small Union camp of but three hundred and fifty loyal troops, at Athens, Mo., a few miles west of Keckuk, on Monday morning last. The rebels, from one thousand to twelve hundred strong, were led by one Martin Green, a brother of the ex-Sessator of that name from Misscuri. They approached the camp soon after devileth, but found the small federal force prepared for them. After an hour's fighting they were compelled to retreat, with a loss of from fifteen to eighteen killed and as many more wounded. The Federal troops and for sale by [14] COOD & MOODY.

OUR WAR FOR THE UNION-THE MEN, THE MEANS, AND THE POWER FOR AN OVER-

WHELMING CAMPAIGN .- Under this head the New York Herald has the following article: Within the last ten days there has been a ver Within the last ten days there has been a very remarkable and encouraging change from the gloemy condition of things at Washington im-mediately following the disastrons battle in front of Manassas. All apprehensions concerning the sofety of the Federal Capital are again dismissed. The late feeling of painful anxiety has given way to a s-nee of security, and our loyal people, more inclined to congratulate each other on our eccape from a great danger than to mourn over an in-structive defeat, are preparing for a well ordered, systematic, overwhelming, and decisive cam-paign.

It has been admitted by the enemy, that with their defeat at Manassas, the rebel cause would have been lost beyond redemption. They had accordingly strained every nerve, and had well nigh exhausted the active fighting elements of the revolved States in their preparations for a desperate struggle in this first grand encounter. They have secured the advantages and the prestige of an unexpected victory; and yet, comparatively, they are weaker in the field to day than they were a month ago. We have it from various intelligent resources that the cream of the warlike population of our rebellicus "Confederate States" has already been drawn off—that the robel armies of two hundred and fifty thousand men now in the field have left but a scenity margin for reinforcements, and that henceforth they n for reinforcements, and that henceforth they ust be drawn almost exclusively from the "poor ites," whose necessities place them in oppo ion to slave labor, and who, therefore, feel very title interest in a war undertaken for the exclu-ive object of an unmixed pro-slavery despotism. We know, too, from a cloud of witnesses, and Crittenden, Gen. Scott, the Kentucky el. ction, and the Union. It is impossible to hear what he is endeavoring to say. There are several thousand persons present, a majority of whom are Union men, who call on the band for the "Star-Spangled Banner" and Yankee Doodle, but can get nothing from them but Dixie and the Marstilles. All attempts to quiet the people were responded to by the cries of "Ramember the 13 h of April!" "Remember the week" of terror!" Several fights took place, and some of the secessionists were roughly handled. Breckinridge was finally compelled to retire without speaking, and the cheers of his friends were deafened amid the groans and bisses.

Mr. Vallardigham did not attempt to spak, and the crowd dispersed with cries for the Union and groans for Jeff Davis, interrupted by countercheers and groans.

WASHINGTON, Aug 8,
Letters have just been received here, one dated the 23d and the other the 28 h Ju.y, from Capt. Withington, of the First Michigan regiment, stating that he was not wounded at Bull Run, but taken prisoner while attempting to assist Col. Wilcox off the field. Col. Wilcox's arm is badly shattered. Captain Rickett was also wounded. Dr. Lewis, of the Third Wisconsin, is attending him. Mrs. Ricketts is with her husband.

Captain Wi hington writes that they are treated a winter campaign.

On the other hand, our Congress has provided the way and means not only for raising, but for comfortably clothing and subsisting a well appointed and thoroughly equipped Union army of half a million of men. This army can be raised and fully prepared for active operations by the middle of October. It should be thus made ready, in conjunction with a powerful navy and numerous transports, for offensive inroads along our Southern seaboard. Then, with a column of two hundred thousand, or of one hundred and fifty thousand men, moving southward from the Potomac and the Chesapeake Bay, and with a column of two hundred thousand, and fifty thousand moving down the Mississippi, we may keep afloat a marine column of fifty thousand men for scaboard enterprises at such points as Charleston, Savannah, and Mobile, and still hold one hundred and fifty thousand men for gerrison duty and for reserves. Thus, with a single decisive dred and nity thousand men for garriso and for reserves. Thus, with a single of battle in Virginia, all the border slave may be wheeled into line with the loyal of the North, and from Missouri, Kentuck; nessee, Virginia, and Maryland a co-op column of another hundred thousand Uni unteers may be added to our military strength before Decamber.

Reduced to this extremity, it will be no diffi-

Reduced to this extremity, it will be no diffi-cult matter to bring back the cotion States to the blessings of the best government in the world within a very short time. In a word, upon some such plan as this we have indicated, we can and we must put an end to this reballion by the first of May. To permit the war to linger beyond that date, and with no definite idea of the return of pages we shall incur all the hazards of incurshle date, and with no definite idea of the return of peace, we shall incur all the hazurds of incurable divisions and hopeless anarchy North and South. The navigation of the Mississippi river cannot be broken between two nationalities; for if we are to have a Northern and a Southern confederacy, we shall have a Mississippi or Western confederacy and a Pacific confederacy, and then we shall have the South American system of petty military republics and ephemeral chieftains in full blast.

English Gostip-The Queen of England recently English Gozip—The Queen of England recently gave a concert at Bucking and Palace in honer of her daughter and guest the Princess of Pro-sia. When all those who had been invited had arrived, the Queen, instead of entering the apartment where they expected her, ordered a carriage, and taking with her one of her daughters, the Princess Helena, went to pass the night in a country house she owns at Richmond, from which she returned the next day. Prince Albert did the honors of the concert, to the great surprise of the guests, for whom this singular incident of course farnished a theme of conversation during the evening. Speculations respecting the Queen's sanity are very common in England.

We invite attention to a call for a meeting of the Union Democracy of Grant county. The suggestion is a good one, to adopt some common platform of objects for a great Union party North and South, and effect its complete organization, so that the people of both sec ions of the Union may have a chance to make themselves heard. Our cause is just, noble, and patriotic, and the paint is, what are the best means to accomplish it? Let the plan be adopted and extended to all the States, and the work will be done. Four fifths of the people long to save their country; let them move, and they can do it, in spite of armies and politicians — Frankfort Commonwealth
